

RESIDENCIAL LAURA

Experience gained from selling 82 units from the Iris projects has helped to ensure that Residencial Laura is even better at giving customers exactly what they want.

The result is a first class residential complex, suitable for the whole family, safe, comfortable and with a happy atmosphere. Apart from the unique position, the well thought out planning of the complex offers outstanding rental possibilities.

To realize the Laura project, one of the biggest financial groups in Spain, Bancaja, got involved. This bank offers interested clients the possibility to take over the mortgage given to the construction company, which means saving money from day one. As an international bank, Bancaja understands the problems and costs incurred with foreign accounts, so has reacted by waiving the international transfer fees altogether and they do not charge fees for a bank account. Attractive advantages that guarantee that the selling price of your new home is the only amount you will have to pay to start your new life in the sun ■

The more a real estate agency is involved with a property, the better it can help and advise their clients. The perfect combination is, when a real estate agency participates in the construction process, working hand in hand with the builders. During the last three decades Interval Marketing has realised that in building diverse residential complexes, it is necessary to oversee the construction work from the beginning, and then be responsible for the selling of the properties, in this way you can take care that the most frequent wishes of clients are carried out while building is taking place. When selling they are able to answer any questions in detail.

Following the success of residential complexes such as Marcastel, Carlos Park, Iris 1 and Iris 2, Interval Marketing is now involved in the construction of Residencial Laura. As with the Iris projects, this complex of 48 two-storey houses which is situated on the promenade in Playa Blanca, incorporated well respected building partners working to the tried and tested principals of Interval Marketing. Using best quality materials and making regular inspections to maintain high standards being important factors. All this together with the experience in dealing with clients from all over the world creates a package which is unsurpassed
