

life won't come knocking at your door

Once the satellite dish is installed and the big new sofa set up in your sitting room, it gets more and more difficult to leave your own four walls. Inside your home everything is so comfortable that it is really hard to get up and go out. After a while the TV becomes a daily routine. Yet there are so many things to explore outside. Just think of all the people who come annually to Playa Blanca to spend their most valuable weeks of the year. Especially for residents, the touristy areas in the south offer so many different attractions, you only have to go there to find them.

On the long promenade between the sports harbour Marina Rubicón and the shopping centre La Mulatta, next to the Natura Palace Hotel, every "night owl" will find their spot. Once you know where the music is playing it becomes very easy to spend funny, exciting and adventurous nights out in good company. For example with the atmospheric live jazz in the 4 Lunas Bar, with relaxed 'chill out' music in Café del Mar, or rocking in the Powerhouse. On the marvellous terrace Marea there is Cuban music in the early evening, and modern disco music until dawn. In other places such as Godino or the Plaza Princesa Yaiza you can find traditional Spanish Flamenco.

All in all Playa Blanca gives you a very international flavour, from Latin Salsa Discos, Karaoke in all languages, traditional Irish singers, modern disco music, jazz both trad and modern, up to the most recent Spanish pop hits, rightly planned a night out in Playa Blanca can be a short holiday in a country of your choice. You only have to take the first step and leave your home because life won't come knocking at your door ■
